KOPPEL—fundamental values of Scandinavian design, updated for today

KOPPEL timepiece designs were revolutionary when they debuted in 1978; today Koppel's pieces are classics

Designer Henning Koppel was one of the leaders of Danish design in the post-war period. He brought his visionary sensibilities to timepieces when he launched his first watch collection in 1978.

Black dots replace the numbers that are traditionally used on a watch dial. This touch has been carried over in many subsequent Georg Jensen watch collections. It is a good example of the collaboration of simplicity and quality that has been a hallmark of Georg Jensen since its beginnings.

The KOPPEL clock is a bold meeting of style and substance.

Stainless steel, ABS plastic

Measurements: 10 cm
